

Update on Topics of Interest in Gastroenterology

Carlos Castañeda-Guillot*

Professor, Research and Faculty of Medicine, Regional Autonomous University of Los Andes, Ecuador

Corresponding Author: Carlos Castañeda-Guillot, Professor, Research and Faculty of Medicine, Regional Autonomous University of Los Andes, Ecuador.

Received: March 11, 2022; Published: March 30, 2022

EC Gastroenterology and Digestive System presents its new April 2022 issue with contributions of experiences, review articles, reported cases, opinions and communications, an expression of its permanent dissemination of new topics and scientific updating in gastroenterology and digestive endoscopy by the medical community of different latitudes.

Systemic reviews are highly topical as they provide aspects of clinical and endoscopic diagnostic management in different topics of interest in gastroenterology. In the 15 review articles presented, therapeutic criteria and results of the application of different methodologies are also exposed. On the other hand, 11 articles on the subject of reported cases show highly useful clinical and endoscopic digestive results.

The published articles on topics in adults and children summarize significant aspects and define the interest of this new number with clinical experiences in organic and functional disorders of the digestive tract. In addition to the topics of the medical specialty of gastroenterology, clinical results, the use of endoscopy and digestive surgery are included.

Volume 9 Issue 4 April 2022

©All rights reserved by Carlos Castañeda-Guillot.